

Angie Frederick

Angie's first experience with teaching came as an Aerobics Instructor while at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln while earning a degree in Exercise Science. The opportunity to teach others to become instructors evolved into teaching and leading teams within higher education as a graduate assistant (University of Southern Mississippi), adjunct faculty member and department leader.

After developing curriculum and leading teams in higher education for over ten years, Angie moved to the nonprofit world in 2012 and has held several roles within the YMCA of Greater Omaha. In her current role as Chief People Officer, Angie gets to lead a passionate team of cause-driven leaders focused on employee relations, talent acquisition, payroll and benefits management, abuse prevention and strategy planning as well as employee engagement, training and leadership development.

When she's not at work, she loves to be active outside with her husband, Kurt, and their girls, Lily & Daisy.
