

Stephanie Blakemore

Throughout a dynamic and impactful career, first as a school teacher, then as a retail and corporate trainer, and now as an instructional designer, Stephanie Blakemore has found her passion in helping others learn. Working for the global headquarters of Home Instead in Omaha, Nebraska, she leads teams through the strategic design, development, and execution of meaningful learning experiences that empower franchise employees and caregivers to perform at their best as they enrich the lives of aging adults.

Stephanie's work has enabled the learning of countless thousands of people: public- and private-school children, technology users of all ages, and fellow employees in corporate settings. She holds advanced degrees from Purdue University (MS in Learning Design and Technology) and Doane University (ME in Curriculum and Instruction).

Stephanie and her husband raise chickens in her suburban backyard and also enjoy gardening. Most of her extended family lives nearby, but she travels to the East coast to visit her son, who is a captain in the Marines, and his wife.
